

Good Angling Practices

It's important that we, as anglers, employ good angling practices when fishing.

There are many organisations who believe that, like fox hunting, fishing for sport is fundamentally cruel and should therefore be banned.

We must at all times be seen to be responsible anglers by treating the trout with care during playing, landing and releasing.

Handle fish properly to minimise stress and ensure its full recovery before releasing.

Remember it's better to kill an injured fish quickly than to return it to the river to die slowly.

Use a priest to dispatch a trout. Hitting it against a boulder is not acceptable.