No member may sell fish caught on Club waters.

The wearing of studded waders or boots in Club boats is banned.

No member under 16 years of age may use a Club boat unless accompanied by a responsible adult.

All bookings should be made at “Heal n Glen” Shop. Argyll Street, Dunoon (Tel: 01369 703680) and may be made up to seven days in advance (except for members resident outside Cowal or visitors). The name of the person making the booking must appear on the booking sheets.

If a booking is cancelled, it is the responsibility of the member who made the booking to ensure that “Heal n Glen” shop is informed in good time so that other members may avail themselves of the facility.

Members (and their boat occupants) having booked a boat for a particular water, may not book a boat for another location for the same day.

Evening Boat Fishing - “After 5 PM Rule”

Members Guests

During the valid period of their membership card, members may take guests fishing on a maximum of three occasions on Club waters at the reduced cost of ½ the normal permit price for all waters except the Reservoir where the guest permit will be ¾ of the normal permit price. Care & Use of Club Boats

The operation of the trip lines by which the Club boats are moored will be facilitated if they are first untwisted before hauling.

Boats must be rowed and not motored near the shore where obstructions may be present.

It is the responsibility of the member booking a Club boat to ensure:

After use it is moored in a secure and safe condition, i.e. both the inhaul & the outhaul ropes are pulled taught & secured on their respective posts.

All rubbish is removed, and the boat is left in a clean condition and bailed out

All the equipment is returned to the boathouse and the boathouse is locked.

Any damage or deficiency is reported to the appropriate convener or the Hon. Secretary without delay.

If boats are found to be waterlogged, members are requested not only to bail out their own boat, but to take a few minutes to bail the other boats on their moorings when afloat, as the hauling of waterlogged boats puts a great strain on the moorings & trip lines.

There are areas on Loch Tarsan where rocks are just below the surface. Most of these are marked with buoys or posts but care must be taken in a boat under power in such areas. See map for unmarked areas.

Prevention of Poaching

Members have a duty under the Club Constitution to assist with the prevention of poaching in what ever format.

The Club employs watchers for its waters. Members are encouraged to ask any strangers found fishing to show permits and to inform Hon. Secretary without delay of any problems. On Club Brown Trout and Rainbow fishing's, poachers are generally observed because they are spinning or bait fishing. They may have a permit but, as is printed on the permit, the permit is INVALIDATED if they fish illegally.

Frequently, anglers fishing illegally can be associated with a vehicle parked by the water, often containing bits of fishing tackle, and usually the vehicle has a registration number of an area out with Cowal. In a case of poaching, the registration number, make and colour of the vehicle should be noted and reported to the Watchers. [Jim McEwen - 0789 175 0539]

The Watchers will then note the registration numbers of all visitors' vehicles, thus "Legal" visitors' cars can be eliminated, allowing the Police to be alerted.

In recent years, prompt action by members has resulted in the arrest of poachers, and in the other cases, in vehicles being stopped by the Police and checked.

Salmonid rules:

1. It is illegal to attempt deliberately to foul hook fish. No treble hooks.
2. It is illegal to use anything other than a net as auxiliary to land a fish.
3. It is illegal to kill kelts, smolts and parr.
4. It is illegal to take unclean or unseasonable fish about to spawn or in the process of spawning.
5. All caught fish must be recorded except: -
 - a) Kelts (any Salmon that have already spawned).
 - b) In the spring only, sexually mature Salmon from the previous year that has not yet spawned i.e. full of spawn or milt. [Salmon in this context means Salmon or Seatrout.]
6. It is illegal to buy or sell wild salmon roe or to fish with any form of salmon roe.
7. Give consideration to anglers on the opposite bank.

Safety

Members are reminded of the dangers of wading. Areas of Dunoon Reservoir have deep silt on the bottom. The banks of the River Massan & Cur are precipitous in places and very dangerous when the river is in spate. Care should also be taken on the banks of Loch Tarsan, as the mud and peat can be deep soft and treacherous in places. Life jackets are advised if wading.

When using Club boats, members are strongly recommended to wear a personal (approved) life jacket or buoyancy aid. Members should be aware of going out alone in boats, especially on Loch Eck, which can be hazardous in bad weather.

Great care should be taken when fishing near overhead power cables sited near riverbanks.

All fishing, permits, boats, etc. are available to members at their own risk and neither the Club nor any of its proprietors can accept responsibility for loss, damage or injury of any kind, no matter how incurred.

Dunoon and District Angling Club (DDAC) do not provide buoyancy aids or jackets for visitors or members. Visitors who fish by themselves, or who cannot swim, or who fish in windy conditions should provide their own higher standard of lifejacket, for example to British Standard 396: 1994 Lifejackets and personal buoyancy aids: lifejackets 150N.

DDAC accepts no responsibility or liability for accidents where the angler is not wearing a lifejacket or where an angler is wearing a lifejacket or buoyancy aid which is inappropriate for the prevailing conditions.

The Club is greatly indebted to "Heal n Glen" Shop for managing the issue of permits on its behalf. A copy of the above rules and arrangements is held by "Heal 'n' Glen Shop" (Local Outlet).

If a person has a complaint, or problem, this shall be taken up with the Hon. Secretary or the Committee and not at the Local Main Street Outlet Shop.

Appendix B
Scottish Outdoor Access Code
The Land Reform (Scotland) Act 2003
(Countryside Code in Terms of our Lease)

Local authorities. References to local authorities should be taken to include the National Park Authorities. Both local authorities and National Park Authorities have the same duties and powers under Part 1 of the Land Reform (Scotland) Act 2003. Therefore, within a National Park it is the National Park Authority, rather than the local authority, which has the relevant duties and powers under the Act.

Access rights. This term means the statutory access rights established under the Land Reform (Scotland) Act 2003 unless stated otherwise.

Core paths. Local authorities have powers to establish and maintain core paths. It is the duty of each local authority to draw up a plan for a system of core paths to give the public reasonable access throughout their area.

Land/Land and inland water. Access rights apply to most land and inland water. References to land should be taken to include inland water.

The Land Reform (Scotland) Act 2003 excludes some other conduct from access rights¹⁴, including: Hunting, shooting or fishing. These activities still require the permission of the relevant owner.

Fishing

Access rights do not extend to fishing. Anglers need to be careful when casting lines so be aware of where people are on the water and on the land. If a canoeist or other person on the water is close by wait until they have passed by before casting. If you have a line in the water, allow people on the water to pass at the earliest opportunity. Indicating where you would prefer canoeists or rafters to pass by can help but be aware that it might not always be possible for them to follow the route you suggest.

There is no requirement in Scotland to have a licence to fish, however an angler must have the legal right or permission to fish. There is no salmon or sea trout fishing on Sundays anywhere in Scotland (except the Border Esk in Dumfries, which is dealt with under English law since much of the river is in England).
